Committee to Defend the President Launches $1 Million Anti-Biden Advertising Campaign in Arizona

Pro-Trump PAC slams Biden-Harris ticket for refusing to recognize Antifa threat

Alexandria, VA — Today, the Committee to Defend the President—one of America's largest pro-Trump super PACs—launched a new anti-Biden advertising campaign in Arizona, slamming Joe Biden for claiming domestic terrorist organization Antifa is not a group, but an idea. Totalling over $1 million, the hard-hitting campaign features two ads that also criticize Biden and his campaign team for contributing to a bail fund that put violent protestors—including an alleged child abuser—back on the streets.

You can see the ads here and here.

The Committee's new campaign features a $1 million TV ad buy statewide, including cable news and local broadcast. At the same time, the Committee will spend about $100,000 to reach Arizona voters on digital platforms with Connected TV (CTV) and display advertising. The ads will begin running this week and circulate until the end of the month.

“For months, Joe Biden has been cozying up to the radical Left, refusing to recognize the very real threat Antifa poses to American society,” said Committee Chairman Ted Harvey. “Even worse, Biden’s running mate, Kamala Harris, has personally raised money for a left-wing bail fund that put violent criminals back on the streets, and Biden’s own staffers contributed to it. A vote for the Biden ticket is a vote for rioting, looting, and nationwide chaos.”
